

NPO ICAN lecture meeting

The First-grade students of the global awareness course met Miya Aisa who works in ICAN. They learned about Yemen. Yemen is the poorest country in the Middle East. That's because a conflict occurred in Yemen in 2015 in which many people lost their homes. Most people in the world never have a chance to know about these horrible events.

Student's thoughts

- This lecture meeting was good, since I didn't know about this topic. I think I want many friends and my family to know more and more, and I want them to be very helpful.

- ICAN made difference at the refugee camps by providing electricity or durable buildings. I hope they can live in good conditions.

- I was surprised to hear that people depend on refugee camps.

- I learned about “Internally displaced people” for the first time. I knew about refugees because I learned about them in social studies class, and I heard about that news. Therefore, I think it’s important that the media also broadcast information about internally displaced people. So, I decided I will tell my friends and family about it.
