

Online Work Shop at Shimokawacho Interaction between Shimokawacho, SDGs Award winner city and our school.

The school trip to foreign countries and the school trip to Hokkaido were canceled.
We interacted with a staff member of Shimokawacho, Hokkaido online, where we were going to visit, and learned how to practice city planning.

reflections

- I was able to learn about how people in Shimokawa are helping immigrants find new job, and preparing various services for immigrants. I could learn they had a lot of different struggles to promote immigration.
- The Shimokawa challenge 2030 left a lasting impression on me when I heard about Shimokawa's efforts. Instead of incorporating the SDGs and using them as they are, they thought about what they could do, and they were organized, concise, and very easy to understand. Instead of incorporating SDGs as they are, I decided to think about what I could do and what actions I could take.
- Through this workshop, I was able to learn why Shimokawa is so popular. I was very impressed with the policies to increase the number of immigrants and the town planning.
- The way of life of the people in Shimokawa looked attractive and great. Also, the way the town was advertised was very good, and when I heard this, I thought everyone would want to live there.
